

UNIVERSAL DECLARATION OF HUMAN RIGHTS

Human Rights – Eurostrut

In the spirit of respect, innovation, and responsibility, Eurostrut declares the following rights as universally applicable to everyone connected to its field – employees, clients, partners, and society:

Article 1 – Respect for the Individual

Every employee, customer, and partner has the right to dignity, respect, and equal treatment, regardless of background, gender, beliefs, or role.

Article 2 – Right to a Safe Working Environment

Everyone has the right to a safe, clean, and well-organized workplace. Safety is at the core of how we design, produce, and implement our systems.

Article 3 – Right to Fair Employment

Employees have the right to fair working conditions, equal opportunities, and professional development. At Eurostrut, we value craftsmanship, commitment, and rewarding effort.

Article 4 – Right to Collaboration

Collaboration takes precedence over competition. Everyone has the right to be heard, to share ideas, and to build sustainable technical solutions together.

Article 5 – Right to Transparency

We strive for open communication, clear information, and fair agreements – both internally and externally. Trust is the foundation of our relationships.

Article 6 – Right to Sustainability

Everyone has the right to a livable future. We take responsibility by promoting sustainable materials, energy-efficient processes, and reusable systems.

Article 7 – Right to Innovation

Innovation is a human right at Eurostrut. We encourage progress and digital advancement, where technology serves people and society.

Article 8 – Right to Local Engagement

We recognize the importance of local markets, networks, and cultures. Every office and representative contributes to regional growth and social cohesion.

Closing Statement:

This declaration is not a legal document, but a moral compass. It reflects Eurostrut's core values: engineering that serves people, with respect for the planet and professionalism.
